A LAST WORD ABOUT THE WISE AFFAIR

By Ferdinand M. Isserman

Now that the tumult and the shouting occasioned by Dr. Wise's widely heralded sermon on the founder of Christianity has subsided, we do wish to say a last word on the subject The Jewish press of America was as conservative as the press generally is, and the consensus of editorial opinion was that Dr. Wise had erred, had been guilty of a faux pas, which had not only offended many Jews, but what is worse, had offended many Christians. In this opinion the press was abetted by reactionary reform rabbis, who ransacked their polemical vocabulary to hurl epithets at Wise, calling his utterance bad taste, and one even going to the extreme of calling it "an insult to Christians." All of which is piffle. We have yet to meet one Christian who felt insulted over Dr. Wise's sermon. We have yet to meet one clergyman who felt that Christianity had in any way been offended by Wise's opinions about Jesus. We fear that the wishes of the Jewish press as well as of these rabbis coloured their guesses as to the effect Wise's sermon would have on the Christian world. Our own experience with Christians has been exactly the opposite of what these editorial and pulpit prophets predicted. But a few weeks ago there appeared in the Canadian Jewish Review a sermon delivered by Rev. F. J. Moore, of the St. James Cathedral, the oldest Anglican church in Toronto, on the substance of Wise's opinions The Reverend Moore not only was not offended by them, but they motivated him to deliver as fine an expression on Jewish Christian relations, from his pulpit, as we believe was ever uttered in an Anglican church Nor was the Reverend Moore alone in his stand We have found in our travels throughout the province of Ontario that Christian leaders generally feel that Wise's views were epoch-making, and were a beautiful expression of religious tolerance. The only thing epoch-making about the views was the publicity that was given them, as well as their innumerable distortions, for liberal Jewish scholars had long ago given their opinions about Jesus, and these opinions Wise merely reiterated. We even found among Christian ministers an understanding of the hostility of the Jewish masses towards Dr. Wise, and an honest admission that the actions of Christians toward Jews are responsible for that hostility. Dr. Wise's sermon, with its catholic spirit, and its genuine spirituality and its Jewish tolerance did more to make Christian thinkers appreciative of Jews and Judaism than any other single event in the past decade

NO, MR. JABOTINSKI!

You disturb our dreams, Mr. Jabotinski, and ride roughshod over our vision of Palestine, when you advocate an army and military paraphernalia for it, as you did when in Toronto. We have been content over one land which could do without an army. We cannot envisage military drill in the Holy Land. Where Isaiah's challenge to mankind "that swords be beaten into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks" rang forth, are we now to hear the tramping tread of

"ASSIMILATED"

By Herbert J. Samuel

What do they mean when they speak of assimilated Jews? What have the Jewish orators and scribblers in mind when they emit their torrents of hot abuse towards the "assimilated"? In immaculate evening dress, correct in its conformity to the latest styles, these bare-headed and beshaven lecturers pour forth their denunciations in polished English, shining with its studied imitation of cultured accent. They do not even trouble to cover their heads for a berocha when drinking the water which clears their throats for fresh attacks on the assimilated. And they scornfully continue their English harangues notwithstanding the cries of "Yiddish!" from their audiences. The scribbler, too, comes back from his flirtation with the waitress in the trifah restaurant and sits down to his desk to pen his castigation of the unspeakable "assimilated" in the sacred Yiddish language. He has put his stylish hat aside, and considers his task too holy to be interrupted when the time for Mincha comes. It is sufficient for orator and scribe alike that "assimilated" is a useful term of abuse, appreciated and applauded by those Jews who enjoy having the other fellow attacked in long expressions. We try patiently to think out the logic of this assimilation phobia. But we must confess that we are completely confused by the impartiality with which the epithet is hurled around. We admit to a feeling that if assimilation is so evil a thing, we ought to make an effort to understand just what it is, so that we can learn to avoid it. But what puzzles us is, that the only definition that we ever get is the reference to individuals and localities. Thus in Montreal assimilation means "Westmount," and in Winnipeg "Fort Rouge." Not having followed the speakers to Toronto, we do not quite know what it connotes in that community, though we have gathered from our reading the suggestion that in Toronto assimilation means Rabbi Isserman.

Let us endeavour to unravel the tangle. The present target is Lord Swaythling. He is a conforming Jew; keeps Shabbos; is a regular attendant at synagogue; praises God daily for not having made him a woman; assiduously promises God to sacrifice before Him all kinds of bulls and rams and goats; is particular about kosher; is married to a Jewess; was president till recently of the Federation of Orthodox Synagogues in London, a body for whom the Chief Rabbi is not quite "froom" enough; is president of the Initiation Society, which trains and authorizes Mohelim. But he is unsympathetic to Zionism and does not like Yiddish. He considers that Judaism is primarily a religion. Therefore he is an assimilationist. Sir Alfred Mond is not a conforming Jew. He does not attend synagogue; was not initiated into the Covenant of Abraham; was married in a church; gave his daughter away in church; refers to himself as a Jew by race; is a handsome contributor to Jewish causes; takes a strong interest in Jewish questions; is an ardent supporter of the Zionist movement in which he holds a leading position. No Zionist or Yiddish orator or scribe has, as far as we can remember, ever yet called him an assimilationist. Mr. Israel Zangwill married a lady

MONUMENT NATIONAL

This marks the second week's showing at Monument National of the Kishif-Mackirin, one of Abraham Goldfaden's greatest successes. The operetta was received so enthusiastically by the audiences here, that the play will be repeated by request on the following nights: Friday, Saturday and Sunday, February 19, 20 and 21. On all three nights of last week the cast played to capacity houses. Those who have never been to any of the Jewish shows will find this week's show well worth while. Miss Leeza Rabinova and her ballet of the Rialto Dance Studio, appeared in the dance numbers.

JEWISH SCHOOL QUESTION

The judgment of the Supreme Court regarding Jewish education in the province was the feature at the meeting of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction, held on Monday, February 15, in the Medical Building, McGill University.

The Supreme Court judgment regarding education of Jewish children in Montreal affects only the Montreal of the limited area of 1867, at the time of Confederation, and is silent and takes no count of the municipalities which have been annexed since Confederation.

This is the "nigger in the woodpile" of the Supreme Court judgment which is going to be the trouble centre, according to legal experts in this city. The "nigger" hides in the following innocent-looking but all-important paragraph of the judgment:

"It must be understood that in the several answers to questions submitted in the present reference, when we speak of the City of Montreal, we mean that city as it was at the time of Confederation, and by rural municipalities we mean municipalities which are still without the city limits. Only as to these are definite answers given."

The Montreal affected by the judgment, therefore, is the limited Montreal of 1867 which lay between Papineau Avenue and Guy Street and extended also from the river bank to Fletcher's Field. Jewish children under the judgment have school rights in Protestant and Catholic schools in this area. The judgment specifically does not count municipalities added since 1867 which comprise a huge part of Montreal as it is to-day. The judgment therefore, according to legal experts, is absolutely silent as to, and does not take any account of, St. Cunégonde, St. Henry, Ville Emard, Côté St. Paul, Notre Dame de Grâce, Hochelaga, St. Jean Baptiste, Delorimier, St. Denis and all the city north of Fletcher's Field, including Rosemount, Cartierville, Bordeaux and Ahuntsic. On the question of the education of Jewish children in all these places the judgment rules nothing, therefore, and the question is undecided, it is said.

The question of the education of Jewish children is pronounced upon under the judgment in Westmount, Montreal West, Verdun, Lachine, Montreal East and Montreal North, but it is silent concerning that portion of the present city of Montreal annexed since 1867. This means that the judgment takes no cognisance of what is probably the portion of the city most thickly populated by Jews—that portion extending from Duluth Avenue to the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks between St. Denis and Park Avenue. More than half the Jewish population of the whole city is resident in this area, it is stated, the number of Jews resident there being estimated at approximately 40,000. None of these municipalities was represented at the hearing.

Under the judgment, it is pointed out, the Jews have no school rights in dissentient schools, but they have rights in the common schools. In Westmount and in Outremont, the dissentient schools are the Protestant, and the common schools are the Catholic schools. The Protestant schools in Westmount and in Outremont, therefore, can refuse to take in any Jewish children, it is pointed out. In Catholic schools in Westmount, Outremont, Lachine and certain other smaller places, the Jews have school rights.

Legal opinion in Montreal is that the whole matter will go to the Privy Council.

ADDITIONS TO JEWISH NATIONAL LIBRARY

Through the aid of Alexander Behr, of Antwerp, the Jewish National Library at Jerusalem was the recipient of a collection of very valuable Orientalia. The scholar, J. Israelsohn, who died a year and a half ago in Brussels, brought these books with him from Kiev when he left Russia, and his family has now presented them to the library.

At the request of some of its readers, the Library is attempting to establish a special department for the blind. A friend of the library, S. M. Joseph in Shanghai, China, has generously subscribed for four magazines for the blind and has made it possible for the Library to place current literature in the hands of its blind readers.

Contributing Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW,
My dear Rabbi Samuel,

When you were leaving for the east, I prophesied that we would miss you, and we do. I was pleased to see the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW of January 29, which contained your article about racial origin. I have read it and applaud. Canada is not good enough to itself; at all events, to this extent, that it does not prepare itself for a full dress review among the nations. In time it will develop a distinguished national spirit and, if one can so speak of the nation, a personality all its own. It is important in that development that the people should have a reasonably good conceit of themselves and of the nation to which they belong.

With best wishes for your continued success

I remain,
Very sincerely yours,
J. A. M. AIKINS,
Lieut.-Governor of Manitoba

February 24 1926

Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.
Dear Sir:

I should once more like to appeal to the Toronto Jewish War Veterans to fall in, not for war, but for shalom (peace), and for the benefit of the Jewish people at large.

From my own observations and experience I know that a soldier organization can do more than any other organization for our Jewish people because we men who gave or were prepared to give everything for the British Empire have a right to demand justice for our fellow-Jews. I may say that we have had a few meetings this last month, but the attendance was short of what it might be. I do hope that at the next meeting that's called every comrade will make an effort to be present and see for himself what has been done to date, what can be done in the future, what we are intending to do.

EAST SIDE MOURNS FOR MRS. SCHARLIN

New York.—Sarah Scharlin, aged East Side snuff manufacturer and philanthropist, who died on Friday from pneumonia, was buried last Sunday afternoon in Bayside Cemetery. A cordon of fifty policemen protected the cortege as it wound through the streets to the Williamsburg Bridge.

In accordance with her dying wish, all of Mrs. Scharlin's extant Jewish correspondence was laid inside her coffin.

Before its removal to the Pike Street Synagogue, the body lay in state for two hours at Noshin Rachminoth, a lying-hospital founded by Mrs. Scharlin at 227 East Broadway. Nearly a hundred women, whom Mrs. Scharlin had helped support, viewed the bodyt

Although Mrs. Scharlin's benevolent activities included aid to forty-eight charitable institutions, it was not disclosed until the evening before the funeral that for more than forty years she had sent monthly remittances to indigent Jewish families in Palestine.

In 1906, the year she refused an offer of $500,000 made by the American Tobacco Company for the snuff concern she operated with her husband, Mrs. Scharlin began to lay aside money for the care of fifty needy families. It was while returning from a visit to one of these families that she slipped on the ice and fractured two ribs. Pneumonia developed from the injury, resulting in her death on Friday.

Mrs. Scharlin is survived by four sons, Sidney, a former Assemblyman, Jacob, Bernard and Harry, two daughters, Mrs. Duckman and Mrs. Meyer Joffe, and several grandchildren.

APPEAL FOR CONTINUANCE OF EMIGRATION AID

A public meeting recently held at Berlin considered the acute crisis in Jewish emigration. The meeting was called by the United Jewish Emigration Committee and a resolution was adopted declaring that American Jewry must not stop its emigration activity and calling for special grants for emigration out of the funds collected by the United Jewish Campaign. The action was taken after it was made known that the Hias decided to withdraw from European activity.

A large meeting of German Jews was held last week in Berlin for the purpose of combating the increase of anti-Semitism in Germany. The meeting was convened by seven lodges of the Independent Order Bnai Brith. All present entered into an anti-suicide pact, taking an oath "to withstand sacrifice, need and persecution, and to continue to live and work for better times."

Why, the hills of Judaea would raise in revolt, and the cedars of Lebanon would hang their heads in shame and humiliation. Is Palestine to be merely another land, with a navy and an army and a flag and narrow chauvinism and one hundred percentism? Did the Jew keep alive for centuries and maintain his integrity that he might build another Roumania or another Bulgaria? No Mr. Jabotinski, we do not like your military spirit. We fear that you are still enamoured of the gleam of the buttons of your uniform and of the Sam Brown belt which must have become you too well when you were a fighting lieutenant. We prefer the suggestion of Nahum Sokolow, that Palestine become the capital of world peace, the spiritual centre for humanity, the seat of a real league of nations. How we yearn to be hosts in Palestine to the diplomats of the world as they plan for the peace of humanity. We believe that the atmosphere and the historic associations of the Holy Land may make for the elimination of much international political chicanery and selfish plottings.

Palestine has not only a beautiful past. It has also a glorious future—and that future, we trust, will be in line with the spirit of Israel's prophets and not merely a replica of any other country.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancour
That for what it cost me to be free
I might have had an anchor."

The following has been sent out in a circular letter to members of Temple Emanu-El, Montreal, of which Rabbi Herbert J. Samuel, associate editor of the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW, is the leader:

"The age for confirmation has been raised to fourteen for boys and fifteen for girls, so that confirmants may be better prepared for this most important occasion in their lives. Dr. Stephen S. Wise has recently announced that he will hold no confirmation in 1926 for the same reason. It is perhaps reasonable that those parents who want a bar-mitzvah should be able to have it. Bar-mitzvah at Temple Emanu-El will consist of the blessing over the Torah in Hebrew and the reading of the Haftorah in English. But no boy will be permitted to say the Hebrew blessing unless he has sufficient Hebrew knowledge and understanding of its meaning to justify his reciting Hebrew in public. We do not consider age alone as the qualification for bar-mitzvah, and will not encourage empty forms."

This is an unusual announcement coming officially from a synagogue and deserves commendation and support. If in the end it should prove a step toward the abolishment of confirmation, as observed now in liberal synagogues, it will have been the beginning of a much-needed reform. To raise the age for confirmation and to discourage the recital of prayers unless the child understands them is to take a good step forward, but to make confirmation mean something entirely different from what it means to-day should be the goal.

At present the confirmant is asked to make public confession of his belief in God and to swear loyalty to his religion and swear to be devoted to it always. The Jewish Encyclopaedia says of confirmation: "It does not mean initiation into the faith or admission into the Jewish community, but is a solemn declaration of the candidates, after having been sufficiently instructed in their duties as Jews, to be resolved to live as Jews and Jewesses. Thus some introduce a formal confession of faith while others prefer a statement of principles."

From the viewpoint of really religious people this is all dead wrong. How does one dare to ask a child of fourteen or fifteen, or even sixteen or seventeen, to say, to promise where his lifelong allegiance will rest? Does he decide at that age once for all on his choice of a wife? No, you would think it a harsh, silly business to make him do it, and yet confirmation is considered a most important occasion and parents and religious teachers think it a wonderful thing to make a child bar-mitzvah. For if it is not an occasion important in the life of the child, why observe it? And if it is, why not go into the matter more carefully from the standpoint of what is best for the child?

At present it is obvious that confirmation is more for parents and thrillable relatives than it is for the child. Just at the time when the child's religious conceptions are the most malleable and when he is about to enter upon adolescence, a period of growth and struggle, storm, doubt and change, he finds himself urged by parents and religious teachers to give his "solemn declaration" to the smell of white carnations and perhaps a suggestion of hot coffee and to the tune of deep, "holy" music. Later, at a party, he will make speeches written by his teacher—in the States in English, in Canada in English, Hebrew and maybe Yiddish, or maybe only two speeches, according to how much education he has had to take. At the tea or banquet or reception for the grown-ups he will be the piece de resistance, but if he is normal he will want to beat it for fresh air. What impression can he have of confirmation except that it is one of the events that emphasize show, ostentation and all the outward trappings of religion? If he is touched by truly religious spirit the only confirmation he will want to make will be made alone, for true confirmation of the spirit can never be made just because some religious teacher has set the date for it.

Confirmation should be changed by parents and teachers from what it is to-day into a sort of graduation exercise to show what the child has learned about Judaism, Jewish history, customs, etc., and not to show what some one else thinks the youngster ought to say he believes. Let there be more diplomas, less "hearts and flowers" and not any "statement of principles" at all. f.f.c.

PLAN NOW FOR THAT PACIFIC COAST AND ALASKA TRIP YOU INTEND TO TAKE NEXT SUMMER

Next summer forget the cares of business or profession and take a trip to Western Canada, the Pacific Coast or Alaska. There's satisfaction in this kind of a vacation—a swift journey through never-before-seen country, restful stops at splendid resort hotels, and, when you reach the Canadian Rockies, gorgeous vistas of lake, forest and towering mountain peaks.

There is never an idle moment if you travel the Canadian National Route on radio-equipped trains. Crossing the vast prairie country, the granary of the Empire, is always interesting. Then there is Jasper National Park and Jasper Park Lodge of continent-wide fame. There are mountains on all sides, sky-piercing giants, snow-capped, massive, many of which have never been scaled.

From Jasper National Park is a never-ending succession of mountains—and more mountains—lovely valleys, turbulent rivers and dashing waterfalls until you reach the Coast at Vancouver or Prince Rupert.

To make the most of your trip the voyage through the sheltered scenic seas of the North Pacific should be taken from Vancouver to Prince Rupert or Alaska. On the voyage you will see from splendid sea-going steamers, alluring inlets, towering headlands and tumbling icy streams and glaciers. On the return journey, see Kitwanga and its totem poles, Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and again to Jasper National Park.

These trips, as mapped out by Canadian National Railways, are not surpassed anywhere and furnish a liberal education on Canada to our Canadian people.

Summer tourist fares are effective between May 15 and September 30, with return limit of October 31, at a mimimum of cost.

Make sure of your Western trip this summer by planning ahead. Any Canadian National Agent will give you full information and illustrated booklets.

NINE-YEAR-OLD GIRL HEIRESS TO $275,000

New York.—A nine-year-old girl, Melanie Frances Eisenberg, of 472 West End Avenue, received $275,000 by the settlement last week in the California courts of a contest over the estate of her grandfather, Adolph Eisenberg, a wholesale jeweler in San Francisco.

At the time Melanie's father, Adolph Jr., died, five years ago, he and her mother, who has since become Mrs. Millard Shroder, were separated. The will of the younger Eisenberg contained no provision for his wife and daughter. Melanie's mother threatened to sue, declaring that her husband had turned over his interest in the jewelry business to the elder Eisenberg.

Her father-in-law dissuaded her from suing, she claimed, by promising to make provision for his granddaughter at his own death. He later died and left his entire estate to his wife and five children. Mrs. Shroder then filed suit to break this will, and the settlement on Melanie followed.

HOSTILITY TO ZIONISTS IN RUSSIA

The hostile attitude of the government toward Zionists in Russia has not abated. New persecutions of Zionists have been reported during the week. All Zionist Socialists who were exiled to various parts of Siberia have been placed in concentration camps because it was found that they were still maintaining their party affiliations with Zionist groups. Many new arrests of suspected Zionists are reported from various parts of Russia. The Zionists are accused of wishing to block the colonization plan of the government, which is supported by the American Joint Distribution Committee. Meetings held in Kiev and Nikolaev recently were disturbed by Zionist sympathizers which led to the arrest of many of them.

MONA BATES BACK IN CANADA

Mona Bates the distinguished Canadian pianist, who appears in Massey Hall in March, is reported to have passed several years of extraordinary interest and experience since she was last heard here as solo artist with the New York Symphony Orchestra. On that occasion she met with an ovation from an immense Massey Hall audience and after her return to New York she played in a large number of American cities with similar success.

In the following summer she left for three years in Europe, during which she has been privileged to study with several world-famous masters who almost never take pupils, and to appear on the concert stage in London, Paris, Vienna, Prague, Budapesth and other European capitals. She met with conspicuous success everywhere she went and her engagement in Moscow was the only one which had to be cancelled, as it was unsafe to travel in Russia owing to the unsettled political condition of the country.

In Vienna Miss Bates had the honour of being sponsored by the famous Count Apponyi, celebrated alike as statesman and patron of the fine arts. Through him the Canadian artist met many of the old aristocracy of Hungary, a large number of prominent musicians, made her Vienna début and was heard by royalty.

Her appearance in Toronto is looked forward to with the greatest interest by music lovers who have watched her brilliant career, which began at the early age of seven years, when little Miss Bates made her first appearance as a concert performer.

SHEA'S

At Shea's next week the headline honours are shared by James J. Corbett & Bobby Barry and Duci de Kerekjarto. Mr. Corbett has starred in a number of musical comedies and in other dramatic plays. He has been in vaudeville with Billy Van and with Jack Norton. Mr. Barry is a vaudevillian also well known in musical comedy. He and Corbett present a breezy comedy called "Taking the Air."

Duci de Kerekjarto is a violinist Vaudeville has indeed executed a musical coupe in securing this virtuoso.

Willie Solar may well call himself "The International Entertainer." In every country supporting an English-speaking theatre, Mr. Solar has played stellar engagements.

Mr. and Mrs Orville Stamm are known as the perfectly formed couple. With a quartette of attractive girls they are presenting a song and dance scena in five scenes each a colourful picture of romantic trend.

Bobbie Brooks and Louise Philson with "Turc" Duncan are seen in a mélange of mirth and melody. Claire Vincent presents "An Etching from Life," an exceedingly clever and decidedly different little playlet. Carl Schenk Duo, Wilfred Dubois, "Canada in Pictures," and an Aesop Fable complete the programme.

LOEW'S

"Dance Madness" is one of those pictures you dream about but never see; they are promised but never materialize. High jinks in the studios make them an ideal impossible of attainment. Nevertheless "Dance Madness" has been planned, screened and produced; it is the perfection of picture art and it will be presented for its Toronto premiere at Loew's Theatre the week of February 22 to a public which awaits it (if we know our movie fans) with bated breath and tingling veins.

Conrad Nagel is the careless young hero, and this same gentleman constitutes one of the most interesting specimens being developed by that celebrated Canadian, Elinor Glynn. She has brought the ambitious Conrad out of the "home boy" atmosphere into the glamourous aura of the fascinating "bad man," wearing dress clothes.

Claire Windsor, that golden-haired creature, who since Irene Castle's retirement from stage and screen, has been nominated the best dressed woman of the films will be seen as the lovely dancing instructor who finds the uninvited guest in her academy when all the other shufflers have departed.

And that equally regal beauty, Hedda Hopper, is cast as the Russian Queen of the Dance, in a fashionable Parisian restaurant, who aids a young wife in quelling the longings of her "dance mad" husband.

He is prominent in many Jewish movements and has assumed the leadership of the United Jewish Campaign for the re-establishment of the ruined Jewries in Europe. He is sympathetic, to a degree, to the work of rebuilding Palestine. He is a profound believer in the future of Judaism. He is an assimilationist. Dr. Zhitlovsky is not a conforming Jew. Rumour says that he inter-married, though we are not certain about the correctness of this (The point is, that it is common talk.) He dislikes the Hebrew language and is not particularly enthusiastic about Palestine. He is, as a great thinker and a most able speaker (in Yiddish), the ardently worshipped leader of a group of Yiddish-speaking racial Jews who are uninterested in, or hostile to, the synagogue, and who eschew Jewish ceremonies. He does not stir up regard for religion or for Zionism. But he is of course not an assimilationist. The catalogue might be extended ad libitum. The instances given, however, are sufficient to show conclusively that the term "assimilation" is, as it is used, a somewhat hazy imagination of illogical minds.

Our Zionist leaders when they visit us over here, are not as a rule seen in synagogue or temple, except for the purpose of addressing audiences. On Saturday morning they invariably wish to rest, to attend to their correspondence, or to write their articles. They smoke on Shabbos. They eat trifah food and do not wear their hats. They never interrupt their interviews or meetings for Mincha. But they rise to marvellous heights of feverish eloquence in their denunciation of the assimilationists. They are in this not unlike those people who vote for prohibition and patronize the bootleggers.

The "anti-assimilationist," Zionist—of a kind—reform-baiting "Jewish World" (published in London) says, "Keep religion out of Zionism." The "Jewish Guardian" (London)--looked upon as assimilationist—objects to a religionless Zionism. What does it all mean? It means simply that the Jewish thinking to which we are being treated is not clear, and is doing much harm through its murkiness. It is tending towards a policy of disruption which can only result in ruin for all concerned. Zionism must remain a question which must include all shades of thought. The true national Judaism is a Judaism that has room for varying and opposing opinions. But it has no room for resentments and hostilities. What is often set up as national Judaism is a condition to which the Jews of many European lands have been forced through a denial of other nationality. We are wrong in denying to our brethren the comfort and refuge they find in Jewish nationality. It is to them a real thing, the only thing that is of any true value. It is a living force in Judaism and has produced as it continues to produce, inestimable benefits for Judaism, benefits in which we all share, and without which we should be immeasurably the poorer. For those whose happy lot has fallen to them in pleasant places and who labour under no such sense of exclusion, Judaism is primarily a racial question inextricably bound up with religion. Religion comes first and foremost to the Jew in the emancipated lands. The religion of the Jew can express itself in variant ways. Not every Jew yearns to see the restoration of the sacrifices. That desire is not a sine qua non of Judaism. Judaism can be narrow or broad in its outlook. It can be fundamental or modernist in view. Just as the manna differed in taste according to the likes of the individual, and as the Law at Sinai entered the soul of the individual according to his capacity to understand and assimilate it, so can Judaism make its appeal to the character of the individual in these days, if we are to be permitted to follow the liberal and sound sense of the rabbis who thus expounded the Bible so beautifully and so sympathetically. The national Jew looks to Palestine for the evolving of a new nationality that will remove the national disability that is actually all that he has at present. The religious Jew can look to Palestine for a new spiritual stream that will freshen his soul and give him a new delight in the word of the Lord that enlightens the eyes. The extreme orthodox Jew of the Agudas Israel has set the logical example. From hostility to Palestine he has come to the realization that Palestine is the inevitable source of the Jewish vital stream of the future, and he is now endeavouring to establish there the centre that will maintain the institutions and interpretations that he cherishes. He is at the present moment the widest awake of all of us. The lesson that we must all try to learn and apply is to forget the golus differences and golus conflicts. They should be swept out of the way in regard to all Palestine problems. What is wanted now and for some time to come is money. Money is the only thing that counts now, money that will provide work and opportunity for more and more settlers. The way to get money is not to arouse the latent hostilities of Zionist audiences. Assimilation-denouncing does not increase the contributions of those who applaud the damning of the other fellow. The way to get money is to conciliate those who can give, to picture the beautiful possibilities of a land where the Jew is proving himself able to find himself anew, to feed us with visions of hope and admiration, to delight us with messages of comfort and joy. We do not follow the Agudas Israel in their demands for the observance of Judaism. We love Judaism in other ways for other reasons, but it may be predicted that the Agudas Israel will in its new movement in regard to Palestine exhibit still greater enthusiasm and become the greatest advocates of Palestine. This will be all to the gain. The work for Palestine has room for all, and we ask the Zionist leaders and advocates to concentrate on the main task and to get away from difference creating and hostility arousing. Let them forget their denunciations and open the road for more unity. If we must enjoy our dislikes let us localize them on local issues, but let us keep the main road open for all traffic. In that way lies the only hope.

Confidence--the Keynote of Success

The knowledge that one is properly dressed creates that confidence which characterizes a successful man.

Collars that feel like a caress. The Van-Dusen and semi-soft made to rival the best starched collar.

Shirts that fit correctly. No bulging at neck or bosom. Cuffs turned evenly, and when necessary taken off and reversed.

Socks and Woollens with that soft, velvety feeling so much desired and only possible when a soap like "Ivory" is used.

Repairs—Every article the man wears kept in first-class condition, not merely "mending free."
